PART II

READING COMPREHENSION

(about 15 minutes)

You are going to read a magazine interview with an American film director. Choose the most suitable heading from the list A-I for each part (1-7) of the article. There is one extra heading which you do not need to use.

- A Are you afraid of failure?
- B What odd jobs have you had?
- C When did you decide to become a film-maker?
- D What was the worst career advice you have been given?
- E What were the greatest influences on you as a film-maker?
- F Your name is Gus Van Sant Junior. Who was Gus Van Sant Senior and what career did he envisage for his son?
- G Do you have any hobbies outside the world of film-making?
- H Do you ever dream about your films?
- I What did you dream about becoming when you were a child?

GUS VAN SANT - FILM DIRECTOR

Director of Drugstore Cowboy,
My Own Private Idaho and Even Cowgirls Get the Blues.

0	I
----------	----------

I wanted to be a painter and then later, when I was still pretty young, I wanted to be a film-maker. The kind of paintings I made were sort of figurative and I painted landscapes. I also did photography all along so that the visual side all worked together when I started film-making.

1
----------	--

It happened when I was in art school in the early '70s. I was about 20. I bought a camera and started making films of my own, because painting seemed to be a tough way to go businesswise. As soon as I started to work more on film, that kind of consumed me because it was so difficult, and it's still that way.

2

He was an executive in the fashion business and he envisioned his son to be in the same business too, but I didn't really take to it so it didn't work out that way.

3
----------	--

I was working on Madison Avenue in advertising in 1969. I also worked as a night janitor, mostly just cleaning and stuff. I could think while I worked but it didn't really present an opportunity to do much more than get on with the job in hand. I also worked in a chemical factory mixing dangerous chemicals and paint when I was 21.

4

My father tried to talk me out of the film business at one point to come work in his company, so I guess that was bad advice because it's worked out quite well for me and it wouldn't have done if I'd listened to him.

5
---	--

Yeah, I think about them before they're made when they're just ideas and then during the making of them when it's sort of harnessing of the ideas. But that's what they are before they're made, they're just dreams. They don't disturb my sleep.

6

No, because if I was then I probably wouldn't be doing the things that I am doing just because of the sheer fear of exactly that.

7

I still take a lot of pictures and I paint. I do a regular amount of reading. Some of my films have even come from a novel or something I have read. I'm reading Marshall McLuhan at the moment, who's not really a storyteller but a media theoretician. I don't think there's anything you can make a film of in there, although I just made a film that's about a character who's influenced by her desire to be on television. Notoriety has always been a human obsession, it's just that now the media is our main form of communicating it.
